Pittsburgh's PNC Financial Services Group (PNC) said Monday it reached an agreement to acquire Colorado lender FirstBank for $4.1 billion, moving one of the largest regional banks in the US one step closer to becoming a coast-to-coast brand.

The deal would triple the size of PNC's branch network in Colorado to 120, giving the lender a 20% share of total retail deposits in the major market of Denver, according to PNC.

The acquisition of a lender with nearly $27 billion in assets wouldn't move PNC higher than its current spot as the country's eighth-largest US bank by assets, but it would help close the gap with super-regional rivals Capital One (COF) and US Bancorp (USB).

The acquisition, which PNC expects to close in 2026, is the latest proof that a consolidation wave in US banking is beginning to heat up during President Trump's second term in office.

For the year through Sept. 5, there were already 117 bank merger deals, compared with 133 and 100 for all of 2024 and 2023, respectively, according to Mercer Capital.

"Regulators appear more open to bank consolidation and more willing to expedite merger reviews," TD Cowen analyst Jaret Seiberg wrote in a Monday note.

Some other notable bank deals this year also involved regional lenders. In July, Nashville's Pinnacle Financial Partners (PNFP) agreed to acquire Columbus, Ga.-based Synovus for $8.6 billion, and Columbus lender Huntington Bancshares (HBAN) announced an agreement to acquire Dallas-based Veritex Holdings for $1.9 billion.

PNC's stock was down slightly during early Monday morning trading. The stock has climbed about 6% year to date while also underperforming larger rivals like JPMorgan Chase (JPM) and Bank of America (BAC), which benefited more from a rebound in their bigger Wall Street operations.

PNC CEO William Demchak has been vocal about his view that US regulators need to make it easier for regional banks to get bigger so they can compete with industry giants and ensure that power isn't concentrated in the hands of a few lenders.

That means growing independently, organically or through acquisitions, and establishing a coast-to-coast brand without straying from its roots as a plain-vanilla lender.

"When opportunities come, we'll take advantage of them, and this is a great example," PNC head of retail Alex Overstrom told Yahoo Finance.

Demchak said in a statement that "FirstBank is the standout branch banking franchise in Colorado and Arizona, with a proud legacy built over generations by its founders, management, and employees."

FirstBank CEO Kevin Classen added that "in PNC, we have found a partner that not only values this legacy but is committed to building on it."

PNC is also spending lots of money building new branches throughout the US and renovating nearly half of its existing locations. Last November, it announced a plan to put $1.5 billion toward those moves.

It isn't shying away from expanding its offerings into the emerging world of crypto either.

In July, the lender announced plans to offer retail and institutional customers a way to buy, sell, and hold cryptocurrencies through their PNC accounts via a partnership with major US crypto exchange Coinbase Global (COIN).

CAUTION REGARDING FORWARD-LOOKING STATEMENTS

This communication contains statements regarding PNC; FirstBank; the proposed transaction between PNC and FirstBank; future financial and operating results; benefits and synergies of the transaction; future opportunities for PNC; the issuance of common stock of PNC contemplated by the Agreement and Plan of Merger by and among PNC, FirstBank and Summit Merger Sub I, Inc. (the "Merger Agreement"); the expected filing by PNC with the Securities and Exchange Commission (the "SEC") of a registration statement on Form S-4 (the "Registration Statement") and a prospectus of PNC and a proxy statement of FirstBank to be included therein (the "Proxy Statement/Prospectus"); the expected timing of the closing of the proposed transaction; the ability of the parties to complete the proposed transaction considering the various closing conditions and any other statements about future expectations that constitute forward-looking statements within the meaning of the federal securities laws, including the meaning of the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995, as amended, Section 27A of the Securities Act of 1933, as amended (the "Securities Act"), and Section 21E of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended. From time to time, oral or written forward-looking statements may also be included in other information released to the public. Such forward-looking statements are typically, but not exclusively, identified by the use in the statements of words or phrases such as "aim," "anticipate," "believe," "estimate," "expect," "goal," "guidance," "intend," "is anticipated," "is expected," "is intended," "objective," "plan," "projected," "projection," "will affect," "will be," "will continue," "will decrease," "will grow," "will impact," "will increase," "will incur," "will reduce," "will remain," "will result," "would be," variations of such words or phrases (including where the word "could," "may," or "would" is used rather than the word "will" in a phrase) and similar words and phrases indicating that the statement addresses some future result, occurrence, plan or objective. Forward-looking statements include all statements other than statements of historical fact, including forecasts or trends, and are based on current expectations, assumptions, estimates, and projections about PNC and its subsidiaries or related to the proposed transaction and are subject to significant risks and uncertainties that could cause actual results to differ materially from the results expressed in such statements.

These forward-looking statements may include information about PNC's possible or assumed future economic performance or future results of operations, including future revenues, income, expenses, provision for loan losses, provision for taxes, effective tax rate, earnings per share and cash flows and PNC's future capital expenditures and dividends, future financial condition and changes therein, including changes in PNC's loan portfolio and allowance for loan losses, future capital structure or changes therein, as well as the plans and objectives of management for PNC's future operations, future or proposed acquisitions, the future or expected effect of acquisitions on PNC's operations, results of operations, financial condition, and future economic performance, statements about the anticipated benefits of each of the proposed transactions, and statements about the assumptions underlying any such statement.

These forward-looking statements are not guarantees of future performance and are based on expectations and assumptions PNC currently believes to be valid. Because forward-looking statements relate to future results and occurrences, many of which are outside of PNC's control, they are subject to inherent uncertainties, risks and changes in circumstances that are difficult to predict. Many possible events or factors could adversely affect the future financial results and performance of PNC, FirstBank or the combined company and could cause those results or performance to differ materially from those expressed in or implied by the forward-looking statements. Such risks and uncertainties include, among others: (1) the risk that the cost savings and synergies from the transaction may not be fully realized or may take longer than anticipated to be realized, (2) disruption to PNC's business and to FirstBank's business as a result of the announcement and pendency of the transaction, (3) the risk that the integration of FirstBank's business and operations into PNC, will be materially delayed or will be more costly or difficult than expected, or that PNC is otherwise unable to successfully integrate FirstBank's business into its own, including as a result of unexpected factors or events, (4) the failure to obtain the necessary approval by the shareholders of FirstBank, (5) the ability by each of PNC and FirstBank to obtain required governmental approvals of the transaction on the timeline expected, or at all, and the risk that such approvals may result in the imposition of conditions that could adversely affect PNC after the closing of the transaction or adversely affect the expected benefits of the transaction, (6) reputational risk and the reaction of each company's customers, suppliers, employees or other business partners to the transaction, (7) the failure of the closing conditions in the Merger Agreement to be satisfied, or any unexpected delay in closing the transaction or the occurrence of any event, change or other circumstances that could give rise to the termination of the Merger Agreement, (8) the dilution caused by the issuance of additional shares of PNC's common stock in the transaction, (9) the possibility that the transaction may be more expensive to complete than anticipated, including as a result of unexpected factors or events, (10) the outcome of any legal or regulatory proceedings that may be currently pending or later instituted against PNC before or after the transaction, or against FirstBank, (11) diversion of management's attention from ongoing business operations and (12) general competitive, economic, political and market conditions and other factors that may affect future results of PNC and FirstBank. PNC disclaims any obligation to update such factors or to publicly announce the results of any revisions to any of the forward-looking statements included herein to reflect future events or developments. These and various other factors are discussed in PNC's Annual Report on Form 10-K, Quarterly Reports on Form 10-Q, and Current Reports on Form 8-K, in each case filed with the SEC, and other reports and statements PNC has filed with the SEC.
